Givology.

Launched in September 2008, Givology (www.givology.org) is an online giving marketplace for education that supports student scholarships and grassroots education projects in the developing world. As a P2P community, Givology partners with NGOs and schools throughout the world and bridges the gap between Internet donors and students and villages in need.

Our philosophy is to build lasting sponsor-student relationships and foster cross-cultural communication. Givology not only connects Internet donors to meaningful causes, but also allows them to proactively track the impact of their contribution. Through our online messaging and blogging system, donors can send letters of support to students, as well as receive updates on scholarship recipients, collected by our field partners and fellows on a quarterly basis.

For as little as $5, with 100 percent of the grant going directly to students, you can send a student to school or even support an entire village's education project. Givology democratizes philanthropy by introducing choice, transparency, and information sharing in education philanthropy.

why?

Worldwide, millions of people have failed to reach their potential because they are cut off from educational opportunities due to financial limitations, poor school infrastructure or health problems such as malnutrition that severely inhibit learning.

Proven to lift the highest number of individuals per capita of investment out of poverty, education both improves the living conditions of the poorest segments of society and drives economic growth through the creation of high-capacity human capital.

Without access to grants, insurance, or credit, many children struggle with the damaging effects of discontinuity in education. By raising funds and support for grassroots education organizations and schools that work in these countries, Givology bridges the education gap to spur economic development.

Donations as little as $5 may seem insignificant, but small-denomination contributions add up to a powerful aggregate that can change lives and futures.

Givology is founded on the principle that donors should always have the right to not only choose their cause, but to also have a proactive involvement in the tracking of their contribution.

give 100 percent

Givology is uniquely a completely volunteerbased organization. That means 100 percent of your donations made to Givology are directly funneled to students and education projects. We keep our overhead as low as possible to maximize social return on our investment, and our administrative costs are raised through corporate sponsorships and grants, so every penny of your money reaches those in need.

Through Givology's web interface, any Internet user can browse student and project profiles, as well as read student and project blog updates, containing photographs, scanned letters written by students, academic transcripts, and videos; donors can also converse with the students they are supporting through letters.

learn

In many instances, Givology donors become so inspired that they join us as volunteers, fellows/interns and full-time team members, providing their services in research, technology, marketing, translation, fundraising and branding. In addition, Givology fellows travel throughout the world, visiting rural villages, school or project sites sponsored by Givology. Acting as the eyes and ears of donors, fellows provide photos, videos, and commentary to supplement the project and student updates.

The formation and management of partnerships constitutes the backbone of Givology's field operations, and more importantly, the foundation of our credibility. Givology partners with community-based non-profits and schools that support innovative grassroots education initiatives or student scholarships in the developing world.

Givology currently partners with over 19 organizations in more than 10 countries, including Brazil, China, Colombia, India, Kenya, Rwanda and Uganda.

In forming the partnerships, Givology targets grassroots organizations that often lack the publicity and marketing resources of larger organizations or do not have a competitive Internet strategy for fundraising and awareness-building. Unlike those larger organizations, Givology's partners are uniquely centered within the communities they are helping, utilizing innovative projects to mobilize the collective efforts in responding to group needs.

In addition to opening up a substantial new source of funding, Givology also spreads awareness, aids in the process of impact monitoring and analysis, and provides translation services for our partners through our P2P platform, broad base of Internet donors and volunteers and various marketing and branding events.

Profile

Circle of Peace School project is an educational initiative designed to provide kindergarten and elementary education. Currently, the existing location of the school will be unavailable after December 2009 because the school is being evicted from its existing property. As a result, the school is moving all primary school students to the Upper school where they will have to share space until new shelters can be provided for them. The Circle of Peace School is asking for help to start building structures to allow their students to continue their education. Most of their students are orphans, aids victims whose parents have died, and poor children who can't afford to pay for education. Currently there are 105 students in the lower school and 100 in the upper school. With these funds, the school will purchase all the necessary materials to begin building.

Events are critical to Givology because they mobilize the community in support of education and are a great way for supporters and believers to connect in person. To raise additional funding and awareness, Givology holds events benefiting students and education projects. Events are undertaken by a variety of sources, from the Givology core team to chapters to individual donors.

Because 100 percent of event proceeds are directed to helping underprivileged students and communities, we rely on the generosity of corporate partners for seed money and in-kind donations. In the past, Givology has partnered with some of the world's largest and most-recognizable companies.

Some companies we have worked with in the past include:
